The INTERCULTURAL TRENDS REPORT of the Anna Lindh Foundation, established in 2010 with the support of the 42 Member States of the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership and the European Union, represents a landmark study on cross-cultural trends and social change across Europe and the southern Mediterranean. The REPORT, entering its third edition this year, is based on a unique public opinion survey carried out with citizens on both sides of the Mediterranean, as an instrument for measuring trends in cultural relations and triggering action for change at the policy level of regional cooperation. The Anna Lindh Report 2018 is based on the results of the Intercultural Trends Survey, commissioned by the Foundation and carried out by Ipsos, conducted in eight European countries (Austria, Croatia, Finland, France, Italy, Poland, Portugal and the Netherlands) and five Southern Mediterranean (SEM) countries/territories (Algeria, Israel, Jordan, Palestine and Tunisia).
